HAVANA, Jan. 2—The Diario de la Marina in a leading editorial says the Spanish Government should proceed with dignity in preserving its independence and in giving Secretary Fish the check he merits if he pretends to meddle with our internal affairs.

GRANT AND BABCOCK AGAIN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Conservative men of all parties who desire to see an honest administration of our public affairs, have applauded you for your condemnation of dishonest officials So far as I am advised your strictures upon that class of persons have been general and characterized by moderation and justice With others of your readers, I was somewhat surprised when, in your issue of last Monday, you suddenly called a halt in that direction, abandoning your pursuit of the small fry, and proceeded in hot haste to defend the person who has been the friend, patron, and protector of all these petty rogues and as many good people honestly believe, a sharer in their plunder.

You assert that this is not the first time that the President has been accused of undersized avarice," and then assert that it is the first time that he has been accused of criminal avarice I am neither a lawyer nor a lawyer You deservedly have a good reputation for both and will diagnose impartially pardon me if, through ignorance or inadvertence, I err in the use of technicalities There are certain things which if done by a private citizen, might be simply indecent," while the same things done by a President of the United States would be so criminally indecent as to subject him to impeachment.

I suggested in a former article that Grant had probably found means to communicate with the whisky ring other than over his own signature. There are some things in this official career about which the people have as I think justly found fault, and about which there is no record, nor verbal evidence For instance, on his first inauguration it was by some fastidious people thought indecent for him to select as two of his principal cabinet officers, men wholly unknown as politicians—men who had never proposed to do what you or I would consider a handsome fortune The act of itself was indecent, and whether it was criminal or not simply depended upon the motive which induced their appointment

During the time that Mr Stanton was Secretary of War a person who has since resided in Oregon, had a very large claim against the Government, alleged to have grown out of transportation of troops and supplies from one stage station to another upon the overland stage route Stanton always declared that the claim was trumped up and fraudulent, and swore that it never should be paid During the time that Stanton was suspended from the war office Grant discharged the duties of Secretary of War The claimant gave Grant a fine young Hambletonian horse, and Grant ordered the claim paid and, very much to Stanton's disgust, it was paid

As in the other case the acceptance of the horse, and the payment of the claims could only have been criminal by means of the motive which prompted the action I can only say that it is my opinion that if the present executive of this State should do such things I also and expect you, as an independent journalist," to make it—in the language of the day—exceedingly "tropical" for him and the friends who sustained him

I take it that when a President of the United States becomes so enamored with the indecent avarice of constant and promiscuous gift taking, and is known to reward the generous donors at the public expense it is a little difficult for the public to determine exactly at what point the undecency leaves off and the criminality begins. And after all it is so easy to live utterance to the epigram, Let no guilty man escape! He should have added, Let us have peace."

I has man Babcock, who holds an intimate relations with the President as to enable him to control the action of Commissioner Douglass in levelling to forget out the whisky frauds as you say, in pursuit of his own arrangements with the thieves, still is and will remain, the favorite and chief fugleman at the White House, notwithstanding his complicity in these infamous transactions

Henderson is still comparatively a young man though he has served six years in the U S Senate, one of the ablest lawyers in the West of strong convictions, and always earnest in earnest in what he attempts He is not the man that the administration wants to prosecute its frauds

I notice that a grand cabaret meeting was held over poor Hendersons case, and he was ignominously dismissed but Babcock was retained And the strongest condemnation you can find for this is, If Babcock is retained in his position, it will be regarded by the public as ground for suspicion" My dear sir we are sadly behind the times The public have long since passed the period of suspicion, and are beginning to have convictions relative to both Babcock and his master Years seem to have taught Ulysses S Grant the scandal of the Santo Dom

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING JANUARY 3 1876

THE MODOC TRUTH

The manner in which our correspondent writes on the subject of the relations between Grant and Babcock entitles his remarks to consideration for it shows that however greatly he may exaggerate he appreciates the respect in which it is held We desire it to be understood however, as intimating that he exaggerates That is for the intelligent reader to decide for himself But we shall not trespass upon the limits thus imposed upon our own criticism when we say that our correspondent appears to draw conclusions against the President from evidence which he would reject as entirely insufficient if the parties accused were one of his neighbors instead of the Chief Magistrate of the nation It is not our intention to protract the discussion of this subject unduly and thinking as much may have been said already as the circumstances thus far developed justify we shall add but little to what has been said

Our correspondent, and indeed all the writers so far as we have seen, who have undertaken the task of connecting the President with the whisky frauds, when brought to the question of evidence fly off at a tangent on some ad captandum matter on which they think the President did the indiscreet thing It is Santo Domingo or the appointment of A T Stewart as Secretary some six or seven years ago, or something else that they would dwell upon Those who suppose the public mind has not yet been made up upon the conduct of Grant towards all those subjects are laboring under a slight mistake So we have supposed at least But if there is something that occurred two five or seven years ago for which the President deserves to be put on trial now let him be tried for that Goodness knows he has been presented and had the verdict entered against him often enough, on charges of disregarding the principles of his position and of trifling with disreputable people One case more or less of that sort would not shock the sensibilities of the public very much and there is warrant in the experience of the past for the opinion that he himself would be no sleepy on account of it But the more the attempt is pushed to connect him with the whisky frauds the more wholly devoid of even probable foundation in fact does it appear It all comes to this that Grant is known to be the friend of Babcock and Babcock is, unless appearances are very deceptive, one of the whisky ring That is the sum total of the evidence against Grant in this matter While Harrington, Deputy U S District Attorney at Washington was under indictment for burglary and robbery, and was under heavy bonds for his appearance to answer the charge the President gave a reception, at which among the invited guests was Harrington This was generally and very justly considered a gross indecency But would anybody conclude from the fact of the President's being upon relations of friendship with Harrington, that he was concerned in the burglary and robbery? This accusation that the President is proportions of anything we ever knew to be urged, even by politicians against their opponents

DOWN WITH THE CAUCUS

We find singularly enough in some of the Eastern Republican papers great complaint against the Democrats for cutting and drying legislation in party caucus There is no likelihood of any undeserved strictures being passed upon the caucus system It is a fraud and worse than a fraud It destroys the sense of individual responsibility and stifles the individual conscience of public servants But it sounds strange to hear it denounced by the organs of the Republican party The caucus stands as the most oppressive assistant to and its most odious influence under the fostering hand of the Republican party It is true and it is to the credit of the party, that during the last two years the behests of the caucus have been set at naught or trampled upon with contemptuous feet but it is also true that this was long not with the consent of the party managers, nor at the instigation of the recognized party organs but by the masses of the party in defiance alike of the machinations and the organs It is not yet forgotten how vehemently all were denounced by the Republican leaders and their organs who dared disregard the decrees of the party caucus or counsel others to do so Now they sing another tune The caucus is a tyrant whom to oppose is the highest service to ones country It makes all the difference in the world whose ox it is that is gored Submission to the caucus when it was organized in the interest of the ring that ruled the Republican party was duty But when the caucus is used to preserve discipline and secure unity in fighting against the Republican party it is a monster on engine of oppression and wrong

It is to be hoped these new converts to wholesome and safe views will not be too severe in their denunciations of the tyranny of King Caucus will be as zealous in the cause of gratuitous advice as they were in its defense They cannot be engaged in a better cause though they have become champions of greater moment The whole machinery of the caucus is in its nature corrupting and vicious in that it will prove no less corrupting and vicious in the hands of Democrats than it has in politicians We agree with those papers which declare that the caucus must be put out of the political establishment But the question is how shall this be done

Bab cock apparently is going to the wall Having left the position of commissioner of the public buildings at Washington seems to have been determined [illegible]

December 6th [illegible]

A special to the Tribune from Washington dated Dec 4th says [illegible]

her did under the caption of 'Make Way for a Better Man' says

General Mosher of the United States corps of engineers who so ably and without flinching examined upon the nature and limited the position of commissioner of public buildings and grounds at Washington anterior to General Babcock's installation has been summoned to the capital to resume this position Carl Schurz is reported as saying in a recent interview that 'There is a law prohibiting any officer in the army from holding any civil appointment and that if he does he shall forfeit his commission From this it would appear very questionable whether Babcock as an officer of the army at all But the law which [illegible] Babcock Mosher and other engineers in charge of public buildings in all one of 1860 a clause of which says that 'no officer shall at any time or be ordered on any duty beyond the line of their immediate profession except by the special order of the President' And there is a still older law of 1 80 giving to the chief of engineers of the army and his assistants charge of the public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia But so competent and pure an officer as General Mosher will be warmly welcomed to the position by all who know him He will not interfere with the collection of the revenue

It will be well for the public service and well for the reputation of the administration if the demand of the intelligent people of all parties for the reinstatement of Babcock be recognized as it was in the case of Delano who was in every respect a better man He should be shipped at once Indeed, he should have gone a long time since Hustle him out and fill his place with an honest man

THE GOVERNMENT BANKRUPTCY BILL

It is reported that the President is preparing a special message to be sent to Congress on the subject of general outlawry along the Mexican border Plundering raids against both Governments for spoliations upon private citizens are increasing with such rapidity as to make it apparent that something must be done besides opening the frontiers to be robbed and plundered at the sweet will of bandits and the damages to be answered for out of the public treasury if not answered for at all

It is well the Government is awakening to a sense of the situation It will be well if the awakening results in something more than one of those spasmodic efforts by which the last two or three years have been distinguished There is matter in this Mexican border question for something manly and worthy the Department of State There is no occasion for a repetition of the bullying that was done over the Virginius affair but there is occasion for a firm demand upon Mexico for the restraints upon her border population to prevent incursions into our territory and for the exercise of similar restraints upon our own lawless citizens on the frontier We trust the proposed message of the President may point out just what is needed, and how that needed thing is to be done

Some time ago the British admiralty issued an order requiring fugitive slaves who might find their way to British men of war to be returned to their owners This order gave such offense to the people of England that it was revoked by the admiralty Recently a new order on the same subject was published which seems to be scarcely less objectionable The new order requires that fugitive slaves coming to British men of war on the high seas shall be allowed to remain on board until they can be transferred to ships going to a country where the freedom of such slaves will be secured to them or until the slaves can be landed from the men of war on the coast of war are lying in the waters of a slave holding country then the slaves are to be returned unless the slave is in danger if sent for him Now since the only cases that are likely ever to occur, are such as will come within the latter part of the order the second order is in effect the same as the first one and the English people declare that this one is open to the same objections as that one The English press are inquiring in their condemnation of the order and are administering a severe rebuke to the Lords of the Admiralty for issuing it

The Pittsburgh Leader an anti Administration paper upon speaking of the remarks of Commissioner Henderson for which he was discharged from the position of associate attorney for the prosecutions of the ring says They are not as bad as persons may be supposed and yet they contain two or three allusions to the President which are personal enough and which show an unnecessary desire to implicate the administration with the frauds before the slightest proof had been offered to justify such a course We do not greatly blame Grant for getting angry and dismissing Henderson Ash says he was not on trial, and until he was no body had more right to asperse him in open court than to abuse any other American citizen there And yet it certainly would have been wiser for Grant to have restrained himself and taken no notice official or otherwise of Henderson's remarks In addition to them would have been the best reply the best proof of innocence His removal of Henderson will not be looked on as a confession that he was guilty of complicity with the ring, but it will have let justice taken its course without any interference would have been looked upon as an implied confession of guilty influence

A meeting of Amos and Brinton other lawyers who had they were indicted Americans by passing resolutions to the effect that the conduct of Thomas or Thomasson in bringing the Model Prosecution was in no respect the fault of American civilization The result on appears to have been rendered necessary by the comments of certain German papers which in some way tend to make it appear that the crime of Thomasson was essentially an American crime Now it is plain in the first place that intelligent people were in danger of being led to suppose that the cold blooded conspiracy to defraud the Government by the blowing up of steamships full of passengers in order to make all the insurance money, and secondly that the passing a resolution to the contrary by some two hundred or even Americans residing in the bottom of capital will remove every suspicion of the sort It is therefore to be highly gratifying to know that the resolutions were strictly passed

The Indianapolis meeting of the Democratic editors on the subject of [illegible] is [illegible] that consolidation even [illegible] of the Democratic [illegible] with the [illegible] and [illegible] the Democratic [illegible] with the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A fair idea of the growth of business in the State may be gleaned from a comparison of the treasure shipped here during the past two years through Wells Fargo & Co In 1874 the company carried away in currency gold notes bonds gold and silver in all a million the sum of $2 020 161 Go The tables have not been made up for the past month—have not been made at the office—but the showing for the eleven months ending November with a $2 842 066 78, and for the year will reach at least 3½ millions an increase of about 25 per cent.
